LIKELY CONTRACT

◆ FRONT OFFICE & LEADERSHIP

- ◆ Harbaugh hired. Fired by Baltimore after 18 seasons, John Harbaugh, 63, agreed to a five-year contract and was introduced as head coach in January. Ownership wanted a proven winner who runs a tight ship; they got the coach who won Super Bowl XLVII.
- ◆ Full staff named. Matt Nagy runs the offense, Dennard Wilson the defense, and Chris Horton special teams while also serving as assistant head coach.
- ◆ Nagy's fingerprint: heavy multiple-tight-end usage, the same structure he leaned on in Kansas City and Chicago — which explains where the money went in March.
- ◆ The mandate has changed. Between a Super Bowl-winning coach and a second-year quarterback, this is the first Giants camp in years opening with real expectations attached.

◆ TRADES & MAJOR TRANSACTIONS

- ◆ SIGNED Isaiah Likely, TE — three years, $40M, following Harbaugh from Baltimore. Widely graded one of the best value moves of the offseason and the centerpiece of Nagy's two-TE plan.
- ◆ SIGNED WR Darnell Mooney and WR Calvin Austin III earlier in free agency; WR Isaiah Hodgins re-signed. Six receivers added in total.
- ◆ TRADE Dexter Lawrence II to Cincinnati for the No. 10 overall pick — a straight one-for-one swap of a three-time Pro Bowl nose tackle for premium draft capital.
- ◆ SIGNED DT DJ Reader (from Detroit) and DT Shelby Harris — the interior rebuilt after Lawrence's exit.
- ◆ SIGNED S Ar'Darius Washington, plus Edmunds, Newsome, Reese and Hood across the front seven and secondary.
- ◆ LOST The team's leading slot target departed for $78M elsewhere — the one significant subtraction from an otherwise additive offseason.

◆ PLAYER UPDATES & CAMP BATTLES

- ◆ Jaxson Dart, QB. Threw for 15 touchdowns and ran for nine more in 12 rookie starts. He is the undisputed starter, but told ESPN this spring it feels like last year all over again — learning a new offense for the second straight season. His development is the franchise's whole 2026.
- ◆ Jameis Winston, QB2. Described internally as a premium, stabilizing insurance policy — a real backup rather than a competition.
- ◆ Isaiah Likely, TE. Arrives knowing Harbaugh's standard and steps into a scheme designed to feature the position.
- ◆ Receiver room, rebuilt from scratch. Mooney, Austin III and four more additions mean Dart is throwing to an almost entirely different group than he did as a rookie.
- ◆ Interior defensive line. Reader and Harris give New York the run-stuffing weight it lacked; combined with Edmunds and Newsome, the defense should simply be more competitive.
- ◆ Continuity is the risk. New coach, new coordinator, new pass catchers — installation speed is the story of this camp.

◆ THE BOTTOM LINE

New York did the two things a rebuilding team almost never gets to do in the same offseason: hire a coach with a Super Bowl ring and eighteen years of institutional credibility, and hand him a young quarterback who already flashed. Then it spent, replacing nearly every skill player around Jaxson Dart and finally putting weight on the interior defensive line. The catch is that Dart is learning his second offense in two years. If Nagy's install lands by September, this is the most improved roster in the division.
